The Campaign, which supports a number of programs and activities aimed against tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases, will get underway officially on November 12th with the slogan, "Use Christmas Seals--It's a Matter of Life and Breath."

Sweeper to be used for trial run

by SHAUN HIGGINS
Banner Staff Reporter

The city will test "on a trial basis" a secondhand leaf-sweeping machine to aid in clearing leaves from Greencastle streets this fall.

Mayor Norman Peabody announced at Monday's city council meeting the city would test the machine's performance before purchasing it from the city of Bloomfield at a price of $1,500. Peabody explained to the council that a new leaf-sweeper would cost about $9,500. If the used machine proved satisfactory and were purchased by Greencastle, the city could save about $8,000, Peabody said.

The Mayor also pointed out the machine would reduce labor costs. Two men can operate it and they can do in two hours what 6 men can do in a day," he said.

Residents protest move

City may sue over house moving stunt

"Special to the Banner"
The "white elephant" that blocked the streets of the city last Thursday is still a topic of lively interest and concern on the part of several citizens whose trees were damaged when the large two-story house moved down Locust Street last week. Last night the city council heard complaints from three South Locust Street residents concerning damage to trees along the "elephant's" trail.

Mrs. Harold Hammond asked what the city was going to do about damage caused to their tree, which is located on private property.

However, the city did move to take certain actions to investigate its own rights concerning damage to city trees and property.

Councilman-at-large Ernest Collins suggested that City attorney Jerry Calbert form an ordinance related to the movement of such buildings and that requirements be placed on such movements.

Collins also proposed two other measures. He suggested the Greencastle Board of Works look into the matter to see if legal action could be taken in the matter and to investigate what could be done to prevent the moving company from doing further business in Greencastle.

Collins also suggested the Board of Works investigate damage done Thursday and see what the city could do to placate irate property owners and repair trees in the area.

The city currently has $400 at its disposal for use in trimming and mending trees in Greencastle.

The Board of Works will take up the matter at its next scheduled meeting, according to City Engineer Clifford Norton.

Quarterback club to meet

The Greencastle Quarterback Club will hold its first banquet tomorrow night Wednesday, Sept. 18, at 6:30 in the Memorial Student Union on the DePauw University campus. Game films will be shown.

Speakers will be Greencastle High School coach James McCammon and DePauw headcoach Tom Mont.

Reservations should be made no later than 11 a.m. Wednesday morning by calling Mary Goodhue at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Fourth traffic victim dies near Manhattan on U.S. 40 in 13 days

Students object to 'no men' in room rule

The Greencastle City Council met in regular session Monday night to consider and pass the first reading of proposed criminal ordinance involving provisions prohibiting person to enter the bedroom of a member of the opposite sex, the operation of "dives", the sale of pornography, disturbing the peace, and various other acts which would be considered hazardous to the well-being of the community.

The ordinance is divided into 12 sections dealing with various acts, which will be considered criminal, if the document is approved.

The ordinance was drawn up by city attorney Jerry Calbert, at the request of Police Chief John Stevens. Stevens commented at the meeting that he or his officers had run into many of the incidents described in the new ordinance. At these times, he said, they did not feel they had had the legal authority necessary to cope with the situations properly. He requested passage of the ordinance, he stated, so his force could function more confidently and efficiently.

The meeting was attended by approximately 55 persons, most of whom were members of the DePauw student community.

Student leader Jim Putnam, a Greencastle resident, voiced concern over the application of the proposed document. Putnam wanted to know to what extent, if any, the ordinance would be applied to dormitories and fraternities at DePauw.

Both Calbert and Stevens emphasized that the law was not designed to deal with campus problems or was it directed against the student community.

However, when questioned further by another student leader, Preston Moore, Calbert said that the law could in fact be applied to the campus and that the campus could not be excluded from the letter of the law. To do so, Calbert said, would endanger the law's constitutionality.

The students are specifically concerned with the section regarding "entering the room of opposite sex." Under the provisions of this section, "It shall be unlawful for any guest or resident registered at a hotel, lodging, rooming house, dormitory or other multiple dwelling living unit in this city to permit a person of the opposite sex to enter the bedroom of said guest, or for any person over twelve years of age to enter the bedroom of any guest in such hotel, or rooming house.

The law does not apply to close relatives. In addition to relatives, certain salesmen who do business with an open door from their hotel room, physicians examining a registered guest, building inspectors, repair men and similar persons engaged in business on the premises are exempted from the provisions.

Students are particularly concerned with the "bedroom section" of the ordinance because of a movement on the DePauw campus to "liberalize" room visitation policies and allow women in men's rooms.

Student leader David Snodgrass commented that this was a major concern of the student population most of whom feel, according to Snodgrass, that they are capable of entertaining members of the opposite sex in their rooms without engaging in any of the "immoral activities" which the law is attempting to stop.

Students and professors questioned the constitutionality, feasibility, and interpretation of the law for approximately one-half hour.

Mayor Norman Peabody called for a motion to pass the first reading of the proposed measure. The first reading of the document was passed unanimously.

The Greencastle ordinance is due for a second reading at the next Council meeting in October, October. City Attorney Calbert pointed out the council has an option which would have allowed it to hear all three readings last night at any single meeting. "However," said Calbert, "on a criminal ordinance we usually like to take our time, and hear all the arguments pro and con."

Calbert said state law was not adequate to cover the problems which the ordinance is to deal with.

Should the proposed city legislation be passed into law the following items would be prohibited:

*Burning trash after dark, or in containers other than metal or brick containers, or in a manner which would scatter smoke and ashes on public property.

*It would be unlawful to burn trash or build a fire upon any paved city street.

*It would be unlawful to run a "noisy house" or disturb the peace.

*It would be unlawful to use, maintain, or operate in the city a vehicle, building, yard, lot, receptacle or similar item which would in any manner cause a nuisance or be detrimental to health and safety of citizens.

*It would be unlawful for any person to burn in any fireplace, open piece of ground, or boiler any substance emitting poisonous or obnoxious gases, fumes or smoke. Such items were listed specifically as rubber, zinc, sulphuric acid, and lead.

*It would be unlawful for any person to knowingly sell to a minor for monetary consideration "any picture, drawing, sculpture, ... or similar visual representation or image of a person or portion of the human body which depicts nudity, sexual conduct, or sado-masochistic abuse and which is harmful to minors."

This section of the ordinance (Section 7) also forbids the sale of tickets or passes to minors for motion pictures which depict nudity, sexual conduct or sado-masochistic tendencies.

*The law also forbids the keeping and frequenting of dives. A dive is defined by the ordinance, as "any unlicensed place where alcoholic malt, or vinous liquors or narcotics are kept, or any place where men or women, or minors, loiter, or idle away their time, without visible means of support and do not do any work."

The general penalty proposed by the ordinance for the violation of most of the sections is $10 to $100 fine and or imprisonment up to 30 days in the county jail.

Injured

One person was injured in a two car accident last night at the intersection of Washington and Arlington according to city police.

Damages to both vehicles were estimated at $950.

Police said a 1963 station wagon, driven by Lawrence C. Elam, rural Greencastle, was struck in the rear by a 1963 sedan driven by Clarence A. Harvey, 303 Ohio. Elam was making a turn off of Washington when the accident occurred.

Injured was a passenger in the sedan, Mary Ann Bryant, 305 Ohio. She complained of arm and leg injuries and was taken to Putnam County Hospital.

State highway flagman is county's 18th fatality

MANHATTAN, Ind.--A 22 year old rural Greencastle man, employed as a flagman for the Indiana State Highway Department was killed here yesterday morning when struck by an oncoming vehicle driven by a 75-year-old Illinois man.

State Police Jack Hanlon said Lewis Gorham was standing in the westbound lane of U.S. 40 here waving traffic around another flagman and a state highway truck. The highway crewman was grading the highway's edge. Hanlon said the highwayman's body crashed against the windshield of a 1963 sedan driven by Jesse Howard, Mattoon, Ill. The accident occurred at 10 a.m.

Howard, who told police he did not see the flagman, was arrested and pleaded guilty to reckless driving in the Putnamville Justice of the Peace Court.

Ed. Raines, of the Greencastle State Highway garage said Gorham was wearing the correct warning jacket and had the danger flag.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Gorham, R.R. 5, Greencastle, the flagman had been employed with the state highway department since October of 1967. He had also attended the Job Corp Center in Oregon. He was born in Greencastle Dec. 14, 1945.

The man's body was taken to the Rector Funeral Home.

Trooper Hanlon said the body was thrown nearly 60 feet and caused about $100 damage to the Howard vehicle.

Hanlon said the already posted speed in the area was 50 miles per hour.

Lucy Andrews, Justice of the Peace, said Howard was charged with reckless driving against a person and paid a fine of $10 and $18.75.

He was released. Surviving besides his parents is a brother, now serving in the Army.

Three people were killed in a three vehicle accident west of Manhattan Sept. 3. The county death rate is now 18 killed, 5 more than last year's count of 13.

Service will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Rector Funeral Home. Burial will be at Forest Hill Cemetery at Greencastle. Friends may call at anytime.

He was wearing a Job Corp T-shirt under his highway clothing at the time of his death.

Other survivors include grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gorham, Greencastle and Mrs. Pauline Griton, Indianapolis.

The traffic victim's father, Otis Gorham talked with trooper Hanlon at the Gorham home on the Zinc Mill Road yesterday. The accident was explained.

Said Mr. Gorham, "He was in the prime of his life. He had everything to look forward to."

He did not say much about the accident, only about the good times he and his son had had.

"You know, it just wouldn't do any good to have put an old man in prison at his age," said Gorham now thinking about the accident. "But they ought to take away his driver's license."

Gorham, in thinking about other young men who are dying on the highways and in Vietnam said, "It's just a shame that these boys have to die so young. It seems like so many are being killed either in war or behind the wheel of an automobile." The father's son spent two years at the Tillamook, Ore., Job Corps Center.

Entertain students at picnic

Nearly 30 students from countries all over the world visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. David Hunt Sunday for a picnic in their honor.

The students are all attending DePauw University. They hail from all parts of the globe including Africa, India, England, Vietnam, Mexico, Venezuela and Japan.

The group engaged in activities ranging from ping pong, croquet, horseshoe pitching and tetherball, to informal discussions of the world's problems.

Also on hand at the affair were prominent faculty, administration and student leaders, including Dr. William Petrek, head of International Studies at DePauw, Jim Putnam, head of the Student Senate's Foreign Affairs Committee, and Louis Fontainer, Director of Admissions.

The event was one of several get-togethers held throughout the school year for the benefit of foreign students attending DePauw.

New trial venued to Putnam Co.

A 1964 Parke County manslaughter trial has been venued to Putnam County.

The defendant is Mrs. Margaret Pritchard. She was found guilty of manslaughter Nov. 28, 1964 in Parke County Circuit Court in connection with the death of her daughter Kathy Jean Pritchard.

The mother was sentenced to a 2 to 21 year term at the Indiana Women's Prison.

A new trial, sought by Mrs. Pritchard's attorney, John Thomas, Brazil, was granted a venue Aug. 30th. Putnam County was selected as the trial location Sept. 5.

No date has been set in Putnam Circuit Court.

The woman's husband, Ralph Pritchard, was also accused of second degree manslaughter, but was found not guilty by the Parke County jury on Nov. 28, 1964.

A Minority Party?

WHETHER or not Richard Nixon is elected president this fall depends at least in part on how he assesses the strengths and weaknesses of the Republican Party. One question is crucial in planning campaign strategy. Is the GOP really a minority party, as argued by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller?

If it is, the New York governor's assertion that the party must move left in search of liberal Democratic votes makes some sense. If it is not, the party need not stray from its enunciated positions in order to succeed.

Those who claim the GOP is a small minority usually cite registration figures which show that only 27 per cent of the eligible voters call themselves Republicans. This is not, however, the only or necessarily the most accurate measure of party strength.

How people actually vote is more revealing than the labels they choose.

When we look at recent election results, the Republican Party quickly closes the gap.

In the 1966 congressional elections, which gave the GOP 47 new seats in the House of Representatives, 50.9 per cent voted Democratic and 48.3 per cent voted Republican. In terms of voter appeal, the statistics show the two parties are almost neck and neck.

While the Rockefeller strategy has worked for the GOP in New York, there is evidence that it could backfire if adopted in the nation as a whole. Recent Republican gains in other parts of the country have been achieved in a different manner.

In the South, Republicans have won office by attracting the support of conservative Democrats.

In California, where Democrats outnumber Republicans 3 to 2 in registration, Ronald Reagan was elected governor by uniting the GOP and then wooing conservative-minded Democrats.

These new recruits to the party might not respond favorably to a liberalized GOP.

With the party in striking distance of the presidency, Nixon must decide whether to use the Rockefeller formula or the Reagan formula. His chances for election may hang in the balance.

Clichés of socialism

"If We Had No Social Security, Many People Would Go Hungry."

Of some forty-five professors attending the dinner meeting at which I spoke, the two or three who might have agreed with the free exchange, private property, limited government philosophy kept discreetly silent. All of the questioning, particularly by one professor of economics, was deliberately antagonistic—not at all in the spirit of inquiry.

Following this meeting, I went to an auditorium to address the Student Forum. Some of the professors also attended.

Upon conclusion of my address, one student said, "As I understand the extent to which you would limit government, there would be no place for social security." Then he asked, "Wouldn't that bring a great hardship to many people?"

"Let me answer your question," I replied, "by going back to October 1948," and I told him the following story:

Just a month before the Truman-Dewey election, I asked a chance acquaintance if he thought the rapid trend toward socialism would abate, should the Republicans win.

"Rapid trend toward socialism? What do you mean by rapid trend toward socialism?"

I named a dozen items, including compulsory social security. "Do you mean that you do not favor social security? What would you do, let 'em starve?"

"You are as old as I, are you not, Mr. G.?"

Being considerably older, he replied in the affirmative. "Then you were around when Mr. Roosevelt took office?"

"Yes, I was."

"Did we have any compulsory social security previous to 1933?"

"No, I guess not."

"Tell me, did you ever know of anyone in America who starved prior to that date?"

Mr. G. acknowledged that he had never heard of anyone in America who had starved prior to F.D.R.

That was the end of my story to the student. But the professor

Dear Friend,

You and your associates are cordially invited to hear the Honorable Richard Lugar, Mayor of Indianapolis, and his staff of housing experts this Thursday evening, September 19, 1968, at 7:30 p.m. in the Ballroom of the De-Pauw Student Union. They will present information on the latest housing programs that are in effect in Indianapolis, and the means by which such programs might relate to Greencastle. There will be an opportunity during the coffee hour to visit with the Mayor and his staff informally. This free public meeting is being sponsored by the Greencastle Housing Committee.

Humphrey at the brink

The strategy of Hubert Humphrey was perhaps predictable. Still, it's sad to see it materialize, and it's going to pose for Richard Nixon considerable problems of self-restraint, a subject on which I do not these days moralize. I mean, of course, Hubert Humphrey's effort somehow to link Richard Nixon with George Wallace.

It is a delicate operation. One begins with the ritual disclaimer, "My Republican opponent," says Mr. Humphrey handsomely, "is no racist. He is a fair and just man." (Incidentally, perhaps Mr. Humphrey will take an opportunity to disavow contrary insinuations by such of his supporters as Jackie Robinson?) Unfortunately, Mr. Humphrey goes on, Richard Nixon is trying to appeal to the same people that Wallace appeals to. And "the third-party candidate for President owes his political existence to the fears and hates aroused by" the issue of human rights.

Now pull that together, and the listener has it that Nixon, in pursuit of the presidency, is subtly disparaging human rights, and appealing to racist instincts. And the reporters so convey the message, as in the lead in the New York Daily News: "Humphrey accused the Republican presidential candidate of playing on the same fears as third-party candidate George Wallace."

The strategy is extremely interesting, though perhaps dangerous. By likening Wallace and Nixon, you help Wallace, and hurt Nixon. Couple their names frequently enough, and inevitably, the listener sees some of Nixon's fair-mindedness and impeccable record on civil rights spill over on to Wallace, purifying him a little. And, conversely, Wallace's air of disreputability spills over and slightly contaminates Nixon.

Now for Humphrey's purpose that would be ideal -- on one assumption. If Humphrey can encourage a traffic of votes from Nixon to Wallace, and from Nixon to himself, all in one swoop, he is doing very well indeed. The risk lies in the possibility that the cautious legitimization of Wallace might increase the traffic in votes from Humphrey right past Nixon on over to the third party.

There has been much speculation concerning the question: whom will Wallace hurt the most? It is generally assumed that Wallace will gravely damage Nixon's chances to get the electoral vote in the South. But thus far, the demonstrated Wallace strength in the North has been among disgruntled Democrats. It was at Democratic primaries, not Republican primaries, that Wallace so gravely humiliated the Democrats in Indiana, Wisconsin, and Maryland in 1964. Talk up Wallace (which is done by associating him with Nixon) and you may very well increase his vote at the expense of Humphrey's.

Who is even otherwise leading with his chin. It is brinkmanship of the first order to go about the country as Mr. Humphrey is now doing accusing his opponent of "exploiting the fears of the American people." What pray, are political contests all about, if not to permit candidates to express themselves on how best to allay the fears of the American people?

If the American people, A.D. 1968, are not fearful, they are either all insouciant or solipsists. Five years with Mr. Lyndon Johnson working away at the achievement of a Great Society sees young men fearful of having to die in Vietnam, other young men and women are fearful of attending colleges and universities without being embroiled in riots; men, women and children fearful of murders, robbers, and muggers; old people fearful of the decline in the value of their savings; parents fearful of the decreasing quality of education; Negroes terrorized by Negro revolutionists, whites terrorized by the entire community wracked by the impotence of our foreign policy and the utter failure of the politics of convergence to help the wretched people of Czechoslovakia.

Exploit the fears of the people indeed! The principal support given to George Wallace in the decent community has little to do with the race issue, a great deal to do with the failure of government. The government's job is to preserve the essential freedoms of the citizenry. Any doubt these are nowadays imperiled is most appropriately expressed by the author of the politics of joy.

Bill Ruskelshaus issues four-point program on draft

Republican Senatorial candidate Bill Ruskelshaus has issued a four-point program for immediate draft reform and called for the elimination of the Selective Service System after Viet Nam.

Speaking in Lafayette at a meeting of Purdue University and Tippecanoe County Young Republicans, Ruskelshaus called the present system outdated.

Major reforms suggested by Ruskelshaus, who served in the Army during the Korean War, which could be instituted before the end of the war in Viet Nam included:

1. Limit the period of draft eligibility to one year. At age 19, a person would become eligible for a year unless he entered college. If a young man chooses to continue his education after high school, the year of eligibility would begin after leaving college.
2. If a person is not called during his year of eligibility, he would be free of the draft forever unless there is a national crisis declared by Congress.
3. A more enlightened utilization of the talented manpower that is drawn from civilian society into the Armed Services by the draft by finding a job for the man whenever practical rather than finding a man for the job.
4. Set uniform national criteria for selecting men for the draft, resulting in gross inequities and bewilderment for the draftee.

By K. C. THALER
LONDON (UPI)—The Soviet Union has doubled its arsenal of Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles (ICBMs) in a single year, virtually wiping out America's long-standing lead in long range rockets. But the United States still leads overwhelmingly in submarine-launched Polaris-type missiles.

These were the latest findings of the Institute for Strategic Studies, released today in its authoritative survey of the world military balance.

The survey said while Russia is pushing determinedly for nuclear arms parity with the United States, Communist China's nuclear weapons progress has been retarded by the internal upheavals of Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution. The development of Peking's ICBM, in particular, appears to have suffered delays.

The Strategic Institute was founded in 1958 as an international center for research of defense and security problems. It has an international council drawn from 15 countries.

The study was completed before Russia's invasion of Czechoslovakia. But the institute's directors said they do not consider the Soviet move to have altered, on present indications, the power balance with the West. Russian troops in Europe have been "redeployed," and have moved closer into Central Europe, but they have not been augmented so far.

On the other hand Russia is increasingly gearing her forces for conventional as well as nuclear conflict, and for both offensive and defensive chemical warfare, the survey said.

The institute's findings included:

—In Europe, Soviet strategy has adopted a policy of "flexible response" along NATO lines. The Warsaw Pact defense alignment and NATO have near-parity in men.

SIGNS PLEDGE--Seventh District Congressman John Myers is shown signing the official Code of Fair Campaign Practices drawn up by a group of officials from both major political parties. Myers called on his opponent to join him in the pledge condemning dishonest or unethical tactics in the campaign. Witnessing the signing is Mrs. Dorothy Jessup, a native of Clinton, and Administrative Assistant to the Congressman.

SIGNS PLEDGE

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Seventh District Congressman John Myers (R. Ind.) today announced he has signed the official Code of Fair Campaign Practices and called on his opponent to do the same.

Myers said the pledge was drawn up by the non-partisan Fair Campaign Practices Committee. The two living Presidents, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, serve as honorary members of the Committee composed of officials of both political parties.

The Code pledges the candidates to discuss the real issues before the people; to reject and repudiate whispering campaigns or unsigned literature; not to vilify or defame his opponent; and not to permit appeals of prejudice based on race, religion, or origin.

"The issues today are far too sharply drawn, the differences between the two political parties too great, to justify any tactics unfair to any candidate or his personal or family life," Myers said. "I followed this code during my first campaign two years ago and I have reaffirmed my support of this fair campaign pledge."

"I shall condemn any dishonest or unethical practice which tends to corrupt or undermine our American system of free elections or which hampers or prevents the full and free expression of the will of the voters," Myers said.

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Seventh District Congressman John Myers (R-Ind.) announced today that he is accepting applications from young men interested in attending the Army, Navy, Air Force and Merchant Marine academies.

Any young man 17-21 years of age who will graduate from high school by June, 1969, is eligible for appointment to one of the academies, according to Congress.

Also this weekend, the Congressman will be the guest of honor at a John Myers Day Horse Show and Barbecue at the Eberle Downs Saddle Club on State Highway 55 south of Pine Village in Warren County.

Indianapolis Mayor Richard Lugar will address the evening rally following the horse show. Events will begin at 9 a.m. Sunday with old fashioned chicken barbecue served throughout the day.

This is Public Service Indiana's $42 million generating unit at Terre Haute.

Wabash River station spins huge generator

Public Service Indiana Monday began full load operation of the largest single generating unit in the company's system at its Wabash River Station north of Terre Haute.

The $42 million unit has a rated capacity of 360,000 kilowatts, more than twice as much as any other unit operated by the state's largest electric utility. It brings the total capacity at Wabash River Station to 885,000 kilowatts and makes it the largest of six Public Service Indiana generating stations.

The additional capital investment in plant facilities assures Public Service Indiana's continued top ranking as the biggest taxpayer in Vigo County.

"More electric power to meet the growing needs of a growing state is the reason this new unit was built," said Walter J. Matthews, president of Public Service Indiana.

"We have built this unit to keep ahead of a state that's on the move and that is why we are also well along on construction of a 1-million kilowatt generating station 35 miles upriver in Vermillion County," he said.

Fred E. Nicolson, Power vice president, said that the new unit at Wabash River Station could supply enough electricity to serve all the homes in 21 cities the size of Terre Haute. He estimated annual output of the station will be about 5.8 billion kilowatt-hours.

The project was three years in construction and required work crews of up to 500 men. Some two million manhours of labor went into the new unit's completion.

Its construction was the largest single project ever coordinated by the utility's own engineering department headed by Vice President Edwin M. Gue, Sargent & Lundy, Chicago, was the consulting engineering firm for the design of the unit.

The power plant expansion assumed huge proportions to accommodate a 20-story steam boiler and a 1,000-ton Westinghouse compound turbine-generator measuring 122 feet long.

To insure maximum possible efficiency at the lowest cost, and electronic computer monitors all 400 functions of the unit once each second. Operators make adjustments and corrections according to information provided by the computer.

The plant expansion resulted in 39 new jobs and brought the total complement at the station to 194. The annual station payroll now is about $1,650,000.

A $620,000 investment in air pollution control equipment for the stack of the new unit at Wabash River station was made by Public Service Indiana.

Recognizing its good citizenship responsibility to help clean the air in its service area, the utility is installing similar electrostatic dust collection equipment on the five older stacks at the plant. This project is expected to cost some $5 million and is scheduled for completion in 1971. (Public Service Indiana is also spending $6 million to virtually eliminate pollution problems at its Gallagher Station at New Albany. This program will be completed by early 1969.)

The new unit was pronounced ready for full operation by Public Service Indiana after last week's final "shakedown" testing during which final corrections and adjustments were made by engineers of Westinghouse Electric Corporation and other major equipment suppliers.

Electric power from the station is fed into the 69-county system of Public Service Indiana which serves 423,000 customers. The utility operates five other generating plants with a total capacity of over two million kilowatts.

Girl Scout Council seeks more leaders

The Putnam County neighborhood Association of the Covered Bridge girl scout council met at the Presbyterian Church on Sept. 9.

Misses Sarah Hoffman and Joan Mette, representatives from the council office presided.

The main topic of discussion was the need of a neighborhood chairman troop organization, and the need for troop leaders.

Leaders were reminded that Putnam County Troops are to camp at Na-Wa-Kwa the first and second weekend in October.

Girl Scout calendar sales are coming up soon. The council office would like to have an estimate of how many calendars the area can sell.

The next meeting will be Monday night, Sept. 30, at 7:30 p.m. at the Presbyterian church.

DEAR FOLKS:

All of us moms are going to have to "get with it." At least that's what my teenager tells me.

I couldn't understand how teenagers studied or read with that little transistor radio or TV blaring.

But I've been told and get many letters from teenagers which say, "It's the only way to get things done, I can't do without it."

Believe it or not, they have something.

Some day put that teenager's tiny transistor in the pocket of your blue jeans, house dress or apron. Then try getting your work done!

The music is always with you. And if you don't like the program you can change it. It's most amazing how it helps. Especially if it's doing that laundry or ironing, working in the garden, or cleaning out closets!

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's an attractive, delicious dessert I often prepare for my family.

I make a loaf cake or tea bread and cut it into four horizontal layers.

Then make a filling of instant vanilla pudding and divide it into three equal amounts. I use cake coloring to tint each portion a different color and flavor.

For example, one layer of "lime" custard tinted pale green, one layer of pale yellow "lemon" custard, and one of "orange."

I spread the custards between the cake layers, put the cake together and place it on a serving platter. Refrigerate and serve chilled. Delish!

A Fan

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's how I made a pretty hurricane lamp to use as an emergency light.

I took an attractive, odd drinking glass and glued it to the bottom of an odd coffee cup turned upside down. Just be sure your cup has a handle on it 'cause this makes the lamp easier to carry.

Believe me, I didn't love you very much by the time I was able to get to my feet!

Now I'm wondering if you have an answer as to why I put such a necessary household item where the elements could resist my ancient body's getting it?

DePauw harriers win first meet

DePauw's cross country runners opened their dual meet season here Saturday, beating Oakland City College, 23-38, at Windy Hill Country Club.

The meet's blue ribbon, however, was captured by the Oak's Rick Espitia who ran the four-mile course in a time of 22:22, one second off the record.

Espitia, the Indiana State High School cross country champion last year as a Highland High School senior, had to beat DePauw's Bill Syverson for the honor.

The twosome were in a dead-heat at the end of three miles with a time of 16:58. When Espitia turned the corner of the course's homestretch, he sprinted the last 200 yards to beat Syverson by about 25 steps. Syverson finished in 22:28.

Teammate Ralph Lowery was breathing down Syverson's neck. He was clocked in 22:29. Oakland's Jeff Moore took fourth in 23:03, but DePauw claimed the win by taking the next five places.

In their order of finish came Warren Johnson (fifth--23:06), Jim Gesler (23:10), Dan Spear (23:39), Dave Barnes (24:07), and Joe Kacmar (24:17). Lowery, Johnson, Gesler and Kacmar are all freshmen. DePauw didn't have the services of regular Scott Shaffer who was taking an examination.

1. Rick Espitia, OC; 22:22. 2. Bill Syverson, DU; 22:28. 3. Ralph Lowery, DU; 22:29. 4. Jeff Moore, OC; 23:03. 5. Warren Johnson, DU; 23:06. 6. Jim Gesler, DU; 23:10. 7. Dan Spear, DU; 23:39. 8. Dave Barnes, DU; 24:07. 9. Joe Kacmar, DU; 24:17. 10. Dave Mitchell, OC; 24:27.

Pottenger fires only score in Tiger scrimmage

A 24-yard pass play from DePauw quarterback Roy Pottenger to end Wayne Schmidt was the sole score in Saturday's controlled scrimmage between DePauw and Indiana Central.

Tiger Coach Tom Mont said after the nearly two hour workout that he was very disappointed in the Tiger's afternoon effort even though they "won" the affair, 6-0.

Until the latter part of the contest Central actually moved the ball much better than DePauw did. The first time the Greyhounds got the ball they rammed it to their hosts' 25 yard line. The second time they drove to DePauw's 14.

Junior quarterback Ron McBride handled DePauw in its first cycle of 15 plays. The attack moved 15 yards in the 15 plays. The next round sophomore Roy Pottenger took over and the Tigers moved from their own 20 to their own 45. McBride never returned to action. He was reported to have sustained a pulled groin muscle.

Each team had the ball for three more series. Central moved 29 yards, 25 yards, and 53 yards, the last effort going to DePauw's 27. All series started on the offensive team's 20 prior agreement.

Schulte Bears head W.I.C. loop

Terre Haute Schulte's Golden Bears after a 48-0 pasting of Honey Creek Friday night holds the Western Indiana Conference lead with a 2-0 mark. Jay Barrett's flashes scored a 40-7 win over West Vigo last week for their first victory of the season.

Both Terre Haute teams, Gerstmeier and Garfield had opening conference victories Sept. 6 to put them near the top of the latter and Sullivan, Greencastle and Brazil joined in the loop scramble with wins Friday.

The Golden Arrows started at the top of the division by handing West Vigo its second conference setback 20-6. Greencastle dropped Linton in the cellar 19-6 and Brazil won in a squeaker over Wiley 8-6. All other teams were in intersectional games.

In the individual scoring race, Schulte's Ron Humphrey leads the pack with six touchdowns in two games for 36 points, putting him way out front of Sullivan's Steve Wagner. Wagner scored all three Golden Arrow touchdowns in Sullivan's 20-6 win over West Vigo, for 18 points.

Tiger Cub Dan Murphy's two touchdown runs against Linton Friday put him in the running with 12 points. Dewey Norton of Gerstmeier, Steve Holler of Schulte and Nick Lee of West Vigo all have a dozen points.

Double Play Victim
NEW YORK (UPI) — Goose Goslin, a member of Baseball's Hall of Fame, grounded into four double plays in a game.

DePauw finally got into Central territory on the third try. This one carried to the IC 43. The day's only long sustained drive developed on DePauw's fourth series. Halfback John Long, who carried 11 times for 63 yards during the scrimmage, moved the ball in five consecutive rushes from the 20 to the IC 43. Pottenger then hit Scott Ralston for 10, ran for 10 more himself drawing a big applause from the 250 spectators, ran for four more to the 24, then hit Schmidt for the TD. No extra point was attempted. DePauw worked the ball from its 20 to the Central 34 on the day's last series.

Mont, rather glum after rehearsal, singled out Stu Sharp and Long for their able running and Jim Davis for his linebacking. Otherwise, he found little to cheer about in the team's uninspired work.

The Tiger mentor said he had told his squad to remember the "big" game was the Wheaton opener, but it appeared he was surprised and upset the Tigers took Saturday's workout quite as lightly as they seemed to.

Unofficial stats showed DePauw gained 159 yards rushing and 96 yards passing. McBride completed two of five for 22 yards.

Pottenger connected on seven of 20 for 74. Pottenger, the sophomore QB from Indianapolis, had three interceptions.

Central rushed for 68 yards but completed 15 of 25 passes against DePauw's porous defense. Those 15 completions went for 179 yards. DePauw intercepted two.

Both teams had eight penalties assessed. Several more on both sides were declined. Most of DePauw's infractions were off-side calls.

DePauw opens its regular season here Saturday at 2 p.m. against Wheaton College.

Can big three match ?

By United Press International

The long climb to possible football fame begins this week for Indiana's college "Big Three," and it just might be as exciting a season as last year.

All three—Indiana, Purdue and Notre Dame—are "up," but whether they will reach the heights of last season when this trio finished ranked among the top 10 in the country remained to be seen.

Some prognosticators figure Purdue may wind up as the No. 1 team in the country. Although veteran coach Jack Mollenkopf traditionally shrugs off ratings, he has made it plain he's shooting for his second Rose Bowl appearance in three years.

If he makes it, there is speculation he may retire from coaching.

Indiana is loaded, too, and so is Notre Dame, and all three are favored to win Saturday's home openers—Indiana against Baylor, Purdue against Virginia and Notre Dame against Oklahoma in a national headliner.

Everybody will have played at least once by Saturday except Earlham, delays its season opener another week. Only one intra-state game was scheduled, Valparaiso at Wabash. Other home openers include DePauw vs Wheaton, Evansville vs Bradley, Anderson vs Wilmington, and Taylor vs Ferris.

Hanover opens at Hastings, Indiana Central at Chicago Illinois, Manchester at Olivet, and Rose Poly at Lakeland. Other games have Ball State at Bowling Green, Butler at strong Western Kentucky, Indiana State at Akron, St. Joseph's at Dayton, and Franklin at Mount Union.

Allied troops kill 100 guerrillas

By JACK WALSH
SAIGON (UPI)—Allied troops driving to destroy Communist designs of a third, nationwide offensive killed at least 100 guerrillas in four battles near Saigon, captured a rocket launcher aimed at the city and seized a record haul of munitions, military spokesmen said today.

Major engagements with Viet Cong and North Vietnamese regulars, including heavy fighting around Da Nang, killed at least 284 Communists today and Sunday, battlefield reports said. Allied losses were at least 33 killed and 80 wounded.

In fighting just outside the capital, South Vietnamese troops reported killing 24 Communist soldiers in heavy fighting today.

Battle Near Saigon
Two U.S. Infantry units killed 51 more Communists in clashes within 50 miles south and northwest of Saigon, following a Mekong Delta assault Sunday by boat-riding U.S. Infantrymen that killed 25 Communists out of a force of 300.

Four U.S. Infantrymen were killed in the six-hour Mekong Delta battle and 15 U.S. Navy men piloting the craft were wounded.

To the north, about 400 Communist troops hurled a ground attack at the U.S. airfield at Kontum, a Central Highlands provincial capital, after firing 30 82mm mortar shells into the base.

UPI correspondent David Lamb reported from Kontum that U.S. Infantrymen drove the attacks off without suffering a casualty. No Communist casualties were reported.

In an earlier battle South Vietnamese rangers reported killing 114 North Vietnamese Regulars Sunday in a fight 10 miles south of the coastal city of Da Nang.

Seventeen South Vietnamese troops were killed and 41 wounded in the fighting which brought the Communist death toll from a week of allied sweeps in the area to 350.

Allied troops prowling jungles around Saigon discovered the site of a multiple rocket launching device 18 miles south of the capital in the Mekong Delta and were told by a captured North Vietnamese Lieutenant the Reds planned to move the 12-round 107mm rocket launcher even closer to Saigon for deadly shelling.

Spokesmen said it was the first weapon of its type ever found in South Vietnam.

Other allied troops uncovered two other weapons caches, including one 65 miles north of Saigon that contained 25 tons of munitions—believed a record for the Vietnam war.

On the lighter side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — We live, as all beer-drinkers know, in a disposable age. Use something once and throw it away is the major trend of our times.

Now suppose this trend were extended to the language. A person is permitted to use a given word only once, then throws it away like Kleenex. What do you think might happen?

This fanciful and provocative question is posed in the current issue of the Journal of the American Psychological Association, which suggests two answers.

One possibility is that people would enlarge their vocabularies. The other is that they would become word hoarders, saving up words for a rainy day, or for death-bed utterances, or some other appropriate occasion.

I lean toward the latter possibility, and if the authors of the article will permit me to expound upon their hypothesis a bit, I would like to carry it a few steps farther.

Carried to Grave

Despite being told that "you can't take them with you," chances are some people would go on to their last reward with many of their words unspoken. Three would then develop a situation where word-hoarders would begin to include the unused portions of their vocabularies in their last wills and testaments.

"To my son Egbert I leave the following words: 'Tantamount,' 'hypertension,' 'twaddle,' 'pipsqueak,' 'antidisestablishmentarian,' 'infra-structured' and 'discrimination.'"

Once verbal inheritance became common practice, certain families would begin to amass large fortunes in words. A single family might possess as many as 150,000 active verbs; another might have a virtual monopoly on personal pronouns.

They then would get together and organize the New York World Exchange to facilitate trading, and word brokers everywhere would start watching the Dow-Jones prepositional average.

From this would spring a class society: A word-poor class and a class able to say anything that popped into their heads. And even waste words if they wanted to.

There would be word beggars on the streets. ("Brother, can you spare a circumlocution?") Told that the word-poor masses were unable to say "bread," a verbal aristocrat would reply, "well, let them say 'cake.'"

The next step is predictable. Which makes me glad we still have a non-disposable language. Glad, Glad, Glad, Glad, Glad.

Lafayette, Ind. A spectacular increase in egg prices, pushing them to the highest level since 1960, highlighted the market scene during the first half of September, reports Purdue University agricultural economist, J.W. Uhrig.

Large white extras—a leading egg grade traded on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange—have climbed 20 cents a dozen since early August. At mid-September, eggs brought 53 cents a dozen—19 cents above the year earlier level and more than double their 1968 low reached last January.

Uhrig explains that the egg price boom is largely a result of farmers reducing the number of laying hens after low egg profits in 1967. A heat wave in August resulted in a further production cut in the heavy egg producing states of the Midwest and South.

Egg consumption is increasing seasonally with the approach of cooler weather, the economist points out. Too, a recent government contract to buy scrambled egg mix reduced the supply of shell eggs on the open market. Cattle prices generally stood 25 to 50 cents higher at mid-month than when September began. Prime steers at Chicago traded in a range of $29-$30, 75 per hundredweight. All choice steers averaged $28-$28.50. Utility and commercial cowpriced were steady in a range of $16.75-$19. Wholesale choice beef steer carcasses weighing 500-800 pounds increased 50 cents a hundredweight, trading in a range of $44.50-$45.50.

Hog prices were steady during the first two weeks of the month with U.S. Grades 1 & 2 weighing 200-220 pounds trading in Chicago in a range of $20.50-$21.50.

Corn and soybean harvest prospects showed continued improvement during August and the U.S.D.A. Sept. 1 Crop Report indicated record yields for corn, soybeans and wheat. The U.S. average corn yield is estimated at 83 bushels an acre vs. the previous record of 78.2 bushels last year. The soybean yield is projected at 26.4 bushels vs. 24.5 in 1967.

The nation's corn crop is estimated at 4.6 billion bushels, down two per cent from last year with a seven per cent reduction in harvested acreage. Increased supplies of barley, oats and grain sorghum will result in total supplies of feed grains that are two million tons larger than last year's record production.

A national soybean crop of 1.08 billion bushels is expected; this compares with a 1967 crop of 973 million bushels, the previous record.

Futures prices continued to trade at seasonal lows for all feed grains and soybeans during early September. In cash markets at Chicago, corn prices rose two cents a bushel; oats increased 3 1/2 cents a bushel, but soybeans declined about six cents a bushel.

Soybean prices are in transition from the old to new crop and processors have adequate supplies to carry them until new supplies are available, Uhrig notes.

The bidding:
West Pass North Pass East Pass South 1♦

Opening lead—ten of clubs. Sweden finished a respectable ninth in the Olympiad, and in the process defeated such countries as France, Germany, Holland, South Africa, Denmark, Brazil and Ireland, among others.

Greece, a comparative newcomer to international bridge, finished 31st out of 33, but scored quite a few victories in the round robin, including wins over Germany, Finland, Mexico, Dutch Antilles, Israel, Jamaica, Spain and Brazil.

When the two teams met, Sweden emerged victorious by the unusually high score of 70 international match points to 59 (14 victory points to 6), even though Greece gained a notable triumph on the accompanying hand.

When Gothe and Knoos held the North-South cards for Sweden, the bidding went as shown. In standard bidding methods South's spade opening is entirely normal, and while North's pass of one spade is debatable, his action was by no means unusual.

Actually North has no satisfactory response to one spade. One nortrup would surely be misleading with 7-4-1-1 distribution and only 4 high-card points, while two diamonds would be woefully short of the 10 points partner normally expects for a response in the two level.

So Knoos wound up as declarer at one spade and made two for a score of 110 points (counting 50 points for making a partial score).

When Glykis and Mrs. Kyriakidis held the North-South cards for Greece, the bidding was far more active. It went:

West Pass North 1♦ East 1NT South 2♦

At this table, it was East who opened the bidding with a spade, not South. Mrs. Kyriakidis overcalled with one nortrup and spent no time fiddling around after West bid two hearts and Glykis bid three diamonds. She went right to six diamonds, which her partner easily made for a score of 1,390 points, and the Greek team gained 1,280 points on the deal for a rousing 15-imp pickup.

Wyoming has 5 per cent of the nation's proven oil reserves.

Television in Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The remarkable Barbra Streisand, who instinctively wraps up the best of American show business in on luminous talent, brought another masterpiece to CBS-TV Sunday night.

The hour was a tape of her famous one-woman concert before about 130,000 persons on the Sheep Meadow of New York's Central Park. It was called "A Happening in Central Park." And it was exactly that.

Miss Streisand was a sensation when she first appeared on television, and she is still a sensation of the very first order.

She is fantastically theatrical, but it is for real, and the countless young persons in the crowd Sunday — giving her standing ovations—were the proof of how her genuine, wholly personal talent and demeanor are regarded by the toughest audience of all: Youth.

It is hardly necessary to go into Miss Streisand's abilities in detail again. She is a phenomenal singer, and naturally funnier than virtually every comedian in the business.

Romantic Program

Sunday night's outdoor concert was surely one of the most romantic programs ever presented on television. The setting was night, the individual shots of people in the audience were lovely and Robert Scheerer's producing and direction captured the romance in the love between audience and performer.

Miss Streisand looked beautiful, as always. Her musical backing was superb, and her numbers ranged from those of chilling beauty to those that brought gales of laughter. There has never been anybody quite like her.

Getting back to more mundane matters, Phyllis Diller's new NBC-TV variety series arrived Sunday night too.

It is about what one would expect, the usual skits, monologues, and so forth. John Carson, Rowan and Martin, and Sonny and Cher lent firepower to the opener, and Director Barry Shear showed his usual ability to get the most out of the least. But Miss Diller's monologues were too familiar, and one wonders whether there is much strength at the show's core or in the star's lasting power.

On the opener, by the way, a musical group of little girls—the Pearce Sisters—was the surprise showstopper. They are the hottest kid act since the Osmond Brothers.

NLF Airborne

Also Sunday night, CBS-TV offered a mildly interesting house organ piece about ex-coach Vince Lombardi, produced—are you ready?—by the National Football League.

And NBC-TV presented "The New Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," a weekly half-hour of kid stuff combining live action with animation. Nothing for adults.

For a Clear View

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—For a smog-free view of the sky, UCLA has selected Ojai Valley for a training and research observatory. The 24-inch telescope, purchased through a $55,000 grant from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, includes a photometer to measure the brightness of stars and a spectrograph which separates starlight into its various colors. A photoelectric scanner is now under construction at UCLA's optional shop.

The

Feminine horizon

By HORTENSE MYERS
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A group of Indiana women will undertake to make the full architectural tour of Columbus which Mrs. Lyndon Johnson had to rush through on her publicized visit there.

Some Hoosier newswomen, who got an eight-page itinerary of buildings to see in Columbus at the time the First Lady visited the famed little city and then found the tour cut to one page by her delayed arrival, expressed an interest in a return visit.

That event now is scheduled for Sept. 28-29 with T. Randall Tucker, who had planned the Ladybird tour, as the guide. The tour has been expanded to include a weekend of workshops open to all news media under the sponsorship of the Woman's Press Club of Indiana.

Other Subjects Listed
While the architectural program of Columbus, which brought such top architects as the late Eero Saarinen to the city of about 30,000 population, is to be a prime subject, other speakers will get into subjects such as what today's journalism students think of the way adults run the profession.

Several Indiana University journalism students and Indiana Daily Student editors will sound off on the way present news coverage looks to them. Miss Mary Benedict, Indianapolis, national "journalism teacher of the year," will be moderator of the panel and another on whether there is an ethics gap between journalism, as colleges teach the subject, and as it functions in daily news coverage.

Members of that panel will be Stu Huffman, news editor of the Columbus Republic; Sarah Bence, Terre Haute Star reporter, and Marie Fraser, director of information services at Ball State University, Muncie.

Others on Program

Robert J. Marshall, editor of the Columbus Republic; Robert Terry, Indiana editor of the Cincinnati Post and Times Star; Ernest Wilkinson, state editor of the Indianapolis Star, and Richard Mayer, editor of the North Vernon Plain Dealer and Sun, will discuss state news stories the night of Sept. 28. Betty Canary, NEA columnist, New Albany, is the Sept. 29 noon speaker.

Other speakers during the two-day program will include:

Ruth Burnett, Islamorada, Fla., author and regional director of the National Federation of Press Women; Betty Cull, photographer and reporter, North Vernon; Florence Stone, Hoosier Motorist editor, Indianapolis; Jane Shick, public information director, Indiana Legislative Council, Indianapolis; Jean Prather, woman's editor of the Columbus Republic; Mary Waldon, Indianapolis Star; Mrs. John T. Windle, and Hortense Myers, Statehouse and general assignment reporter for United Press International, Indianapolis.

Coal for electricity heats Hoosier economy

Pouring on the coal to keep electric generators spinning at five Public Service Indiana generating plants is a full-time job for hundreds of Hoosiers.

The state's largest consumer of Indiana-mined coal will burn more than 5 million tons of coal this year at its five steam generating stations, including Wabash River Station north of Terre Haute.

By 1973, Public Service Indiana expects to consume more than 8 million tons of coal annually. Massive boilers at Wabash River Station, the biggest of the company's five coal-fired generating plants, will burn some 2.3 million tons of Indiana coal a year. The new Unit 6 boiler alone will account for nearly 900,000 tons of the annual burn.

The Indiana Coal Association estimates that about 150 miners will be employed to produce the coal used each year at just the Wabash River Station.

These 150 mining jobs add more than $1 million in personal income and make nearly 100 more jobs in related fields.

Production of more than 2 million tons of coal will generate about $500,000 in state tax revenue and require a multi-million dollar investment in equipment by the utility's two coal suppliers—Ayrshire Collieries Corp. and Peabody Coal Co. Ayrshire supplies about 600,000 tons of coal to Wabash River Station and Peabody will supply 1.7 million tons.

Coal comes to Wabash River Station by unit trains, more than 100 cars long, from the Ayrshire and Peabody mines in southwestern Indiana. These trains, carrying 9,000 tons each, make the trip from mine to generating station six times each week. At the generating station, the coal passes through giant pulverizers where it is crushed and ground as fine as face powder. Powdered coal is blown into boilers under tremendous pressure and is ignited instantaneously, to provide the heat that turns water into steam to drive turbines and generators.

Less glamorous, possibly, than nuclear fuels, coal remains the least expensive fuel for electric power production in most areas of the country.

Dandelion and bacon salad is a favorite dish in the Champagne section of France.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

ONE OF THE highest salaried stars in TV and film don't maintain that in his commodious new home he has a dining room in which he eats breakfast and a breakfast room where he eats dinner. He explains, "I'm darned if I'm going to let any room tell me where to eat what in."

Two middle-aged men opened a fancy retail clothing emporium in Miami Beach this year, but customers the first two weeks were conspicuous by their absence. "I'm getting very worried, Morris," admitted one. "Do you still think this location will go?" "It ought to," maintained the other stoutly. "It's sixty per cent wood."

Here are three short, typical anecdotes from Oscar Levant's sparkling new book, "The Unimportance of Being Oscar":

1. Composer Rossini cut short his career when he was very young and in his prime. His wonderful reason: "When I began, the melodies chased me. Now, I have to chase them."
2. At a reception, a Boston matron gushed to the great conductor Koussevitzky. "Maestro, you are a god to me." "Oh, madam," sighed Koussevitzky. "What a responsibility!"
3. Averell Harriman once complained to his friend, Sam Goldwyn, "My fate seems to be that I have to start from scratch with each new President." Goldwyn consoled him. "Don't let it bother you. Don't even ignore it."

How long will your kid let you borrow the phone tonight?

5 minutes? 10 minutes? 15? Will she find it in her heart to let you call a few friends? Will she give in and let you make some business calls?

If all this sounds slightly familiar, then welcome to the club, pal. Because at one time or another, most parents have had to face the problem of a kid who seems to live on the phone. But, luckily, the problem is an easy one to solve.

Simply get your kid a phone.* With her very own number. In her (his if you have a boy) very own room.

That way, you can use your phone anytime you want to. And she can use hers anytime she wants to.

But best of all, you won't have to listen to your kids' infernal conversations. And your kids won't have to listen to yours.

680 pounds marijuana recovered

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI)—Bloomington and Monroe County authorities arrested five persons Saturday night at a rural home east of here and confiscated 680 pounds of green marijuana, valued at $180,000.

Arrested and charged with illegal possession of marijuana were Mike Hannah, 22, Bloomington; Warren Deaton III, 21, Gary Puckett, 23, and his wife, Nangedale, 21, all of Denton, Tex. Also arrested was a 17-year-old Bloomington girl who was released to her parents.

Police said the marijuana was apparently cut Friday near Nappanee and transported to Bloomington in a station wagon and car and rental trailer. The marijuana was discovered by Jay Ellis, landlord of the house where the arrests were made, police said.

of economics, who had led the antagonistic questioning at the dinner session, could not let this pass. Shouted he, "I have seen a dozen starve."

"Do you mean to tell me, professor, that you actually stood by and watched a human being starve to death?"

The professor, of course, had never witnessed a human being starve to death, and the students were well aware of the fact. Even a gangster, who would murder a competitor, could not stand by and watch a kitten, let alone a human being, starve to death.

Pueblo members get fair treatment

The two Indiana crew members of the captured U.S.S. Pueblo apparently are being given "adequate" meals, but the father of one of the Hoosiers thinks an abundance of publicity is delaying their release from North Korea.

Lloyd Marshall, an Austin truck driver and father of seven children, said he thinks his son, Larry, and the other members of the Pueblo crew would be released sooner if the news media cut down on the publicity.

"All Communist countries thrive on propaganda and until the publicity surrounding the ship is minimized, the North Koreans will never release the boat or its crew," Marshall said.

Marshall said his son had never hinted at the Pueblo's full activities, but only said the ship tested ocean temperatures and performed other oceanographic functions. Marshall said he was "shocked to find out in reality it was an intelligence vessel."
